

Australia - Wadalbavale Line

The Wadalbavale Line is a fictional NSW branchline that meanders through scenic rural and coastal countryside. Set in the late 1960's the typical activities revolve around mail and light freight deliveries as well as the famous "Silver City Comet" passenger train. Take on the challenging passenger and freight runs shunting wagons along the way, or use the base session to create your own activities along this stunningly picturesque route.

Also included are the 48 and 81 Class locos in a variety of liveries. The 400 Class railmotors and the Silver City Comet in two liveries, including as it appeared when retired. To support the layout, a variety of scenery assets including stations, goods sheds and signals have been added to the collection. This is just a small selection of what Cardiff Workshops will have to offer.

Cardiff Workshops is always working on more NSW Content, including passenger and freight rollingstock, a collection of stations and associated station buildings and scenery items and other railway related assets. There will also be further signals added to the collection included with TRS2006, along with a comprehensive "Safeworking and Signalling Guide for Trainz" document.
